3. Past, Present, and Future Activities

a: "What specific activities do you conduct?"

We conduct activities directed toward young individuals in the community for the purpose of improving or developing his or her capabilities in the realm of game development. Specifically, we run a few open source videogame projects which the community helps develop collectively. These projects are used as a learning tool. Even if one is not talented enough to contribute, they are able to download the projects and examine them to see and learn what methods were used to make them function correctly.

b: "Who participates in the activities?"

Anyone is welcome to participate in our game projects. Although, our organizations audience is predominately targeted towards technical or artistically inclined young adults. Most aspects of game development are difficult skills to master.

c: "Where do you conduct the activities?"

Our activities are predominately conducted online via the internet. We plan on hosting events in Iowa at both Iowa State University and Des Moines Area Community College and possibly with a few local schools. For our online activities, we utilize websites and software to collaborate together remotely.

d: "When or how often do the activities occur?"

Our online activities are ongoing and available at any time through our website. Our physical meet-ups will occur in the future. Right now we are in the process of building support for our organization before we host physical events.

e: "What fees, if any, are charged and how do you determine them?"

We do not charge any fees.

f: "What percentage of your time and resources you spend on the activities?"

Almost 100% (above 95%) of our time and resources are spent on these activities.
